AFTER THE CAUCUS.
 Editorial Correspondence to the Gazette.

MADISON, Jan. 17.—As was predicted in the Gazette last evening the Republican caucus made no nomination for United States Senator. After taking thirteen ballots and working till after eleven o'clock, on an adjournment was taken until three o'clock this afternoon. The result of last night's work shows that the Keyes men have been altogether too confident of their strength. While they claimed from 35 to 50 votes, at no time did they get more than 32, and they ran as low as 26. This proves the fallacy of all speculations as to the final result. No one at this hour of writing can forecast what the end will be. Of course the friends of all three of the candidates are confident of the success of their respective leaders, though it is puzzling to an outsider to understand where either will get his strength. They won't talk of breaks or compromises, and put no faith in the dark horse theory.

THE CARPENTER MEN
 still claim that Matt's chances are good, and declare that they will make no compact with anyone. They are firm, resolute, hopeful, and are in good humor, and don't intend to break. The men are well in hand, and have so much admiration for their chief, that they don't propose to dishonor him by quitting the field. Carpenter himself, does not express over-confidence, though he regards his chances as good as either Howe's or Keyes'. He is cautious in his statements, takes a common sense view of the situation, does not worry over the contest, and will gallantly abide by the result.

THE FRIENDS OF HOWE
 regard his chances as decidedly the best of any of the candidates, and for that reason are determined to keep up a solid front. They profess to be encouraged by the statement which they say has been frequently made, that a break will sooner or later take place in the ranks of Carpenter and Keyes, and that fully two-thirds of their men would go over to Howe. Speaker Kelly, who is a warm supporter of Senator Howe, said this morning that he was very confident of the Senator's re-election, and that of the Carpenter and Keyes men a majority of them would prefer him and would support him when they saw there was no hope for either of the other candidates. A prominent Keyes man, who spoke in the caucus last night in favor of his candidate, is credited with saying that in case Mr. Keyes could not be elected, more than half of his men would vote for Howe in preference to Carpenter. The Carpenter men place no reliance in such a statement, and friends of Keyes affirm that no such foolish proposition ever came from their side.

CHAIRMAN RUBLEE
 is evidently puzzled over the developments in the caucus. He can't see where Carpenter draws his strength from, and wonders how any 32 men can be found who can vote for Keyes. He has but little to say about what the end will be, because it is idle to make speculations. He is very firm and frank in his statement that as between Carpenter and Keyes he has no choice—that neither of them is entitled to the confidence and support of the Republicans. He makes no conjectures regarding the dark horse. Nobody can without making a blunder.

KEYES' CHANCES
 are not as bright as his friends hoped and prophesied they would be. They have counted on a greater number of votes for the past month, and consequently are disappointed, though they profess to lose no hope. There is no such word as "fall" in their vocabulary, and notwithstanding they are as liable to suffer defeat as any one, they won't acknowledge that there is a possibility of such a thing. They will hold a meeting at eleven o'clock this morning to talk over the prospects, to build each other up in their faith, and to stimulate each other in the hard work before them. An effort will probably be made to induce the Carpenter men to withdraw their candidate and support Keyes, for the reason that Carpenter is under obligations to Keyes for his election two years ago; and that should he withdraw and support Keyes he would be the successful candidate two years hence. Mr. Keyes claims that after Carpenter's defeat four years ago, the latter promised him that he would not be a candidate in 1879 if the whole State was for him, and urged Keyes to enter the race, and promising him support. While no bargain of this kind is claimed to have been made, it was clearly understood that this was to be the programme, and from that time on Mr. Keyes intended to be a candidate, and hoped to receive the Carpenter influence. The friends of the former consider it had faith on the part of Carpenter to come out as a candidate after his promises following his defeat in 1875. With this feeling on hand, they claim that there can be no compromise made by Keyes looking toward Carpenter's success.

THE DARK HORSE BRIGADE has narrowed down to five or six. Those who refuse to vote for either of the three prominent candidates are Assemblymen Ausman, of Dunn, Bradley, of LaCrosse, Carter, of Grant, DeGroff, of Buffalo, and Senators Hathaway, of Grant, and Van Steenwyk, of LaCrosse. They vote for Sawyer, but Sawyer is a Howe man. The caucus will meet this afternoon at three o'clock, but there is but little hope of making a nomination. The feeling is not a bitter one between the candidates, which is a pleasant feature of the great struggle.

MINERS' STRIKE.
 Special to the Gazette.
 PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17.—A miners' strike has begun with large dimensions and great trouble is feared. Back pay is the disturbing cause.

The Republican Senatorial Caucus—Senator Richardson's Speech—The Ballot.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—The Republican Legislative caucus, for nomination of United States Senator, met in the Senate Chamber at 7:30 o'clock. Senator D. E. Welch was elected Chairman, and A. C. Allen, Secretary. Representatives of the press were admitted.

Senator Richardson, of Rock county, presented the name of Hon. Matt. H. Carpenter as follows:

Mr. CHAIRMAN:—In behalf of a large majority of the Republicans and a very large majority of all the citizens of the Seventeenth Senatorial District, I have the honor to present to this convention for the high office of United States Senator, the same one who for many years as boy and man was a citizen of Rock county, where his kindly acts, genial nature, and disinterested friendships have made his name in every household as dear as that of brother. I present the name of one, who in the hour of his country's greatest danger, when strong men trembled for the fate of the institutions which their fathers had established; when the beacon fires of treason burned on every hill, and the blood of patriots dyed every stream, burst the bonds of party and political friendships, and by throwing his great influence and talent upon the side of his country's defenders contributed, as few men could contribute, to secure a victory which set millions free, and contributed more to the honor of humanity than all the triumph of all the Caesars.

I present the name of one whose eloquence shines with equal luster beside that of Henry and Clay—of a lawyer who ranks with Bacon and Webster.

A statesman who was the chosen leader of a Senate, which was honored by the presence of Sumner and Morton, and many others, the luster of whose names makes them the brightest of those recorded in Roman history.

I present the name of one who has made the fame of the young State of Wisconsin as wide-spread as is the language we speak. Yes, as wide-spread as civilization.

I present the name of Matthew H. Carpenter.

Senator Hutchinson presented the name of E. W. Keyes; Speaker Kelley that of Senator Howe. Senator Treat and Assemblyman Carter were appointed tellers. Every Republican member was present except one. The ballots resulted as follows:

GAGGING A DYING MAN.

An Extraordinary Robbery in a Philadelphia Sick Room—The Patient Beaten.

Philadelphia Press.

At the residence of Mrs. Sweeney on Christmas street, above Eighth, a young relative is dying of consumption. The doctor has been considered, that a priest had already administered to him the last rites of the church.

On Wednesday night Mrs. Sweeney took her seat at her bedside and waited until he had sunk into a sleep. Worn out with her day's labors, for the lady carries on the business of an undertaker, she stole to an adjoining room and there, on a bed to snatch a few moments' rest. During her absence the sick man saw the burly form of two men on a shelf outside the window of his apartment, on the second story rear, acting in such a manner as to satisfy him that they were upon an errand of robbery.

Long sickness had rendered him completely helpless, and his voice could not be raised above a whisper, and by these circumstances he was compelled to lay and wait the issue of events. Presently he saw the window raised, and the two men stealthily entered his room. Then they crept to his bedside, and one of the villains, to silence him, dealt him a heavy blow on the forehead. The man was helpless. The wretches bound his feet with cords, and shackled his bony arms with ropes that cut deep into his bloodless skin and filled his body with pains. But still their awful work was but half finished. Fearing that he might cry out, they gagged his mouth and covered his head with a towel in such a manner as to make it stiff. His already feeble respiration. Then they began their work of plunder. Seizing one of the pillows, the thieves ripped open the ticking and emptied the feathers upon the floor. Having thus secured themselves a sack, they searched through the house and collected a large piece of satin, a roll of black cashmere, and a piece of silk used by Mrs. Sweeney for coffin mountings. These articles they placed in the pillow-case, and then proceeded to make their escape.

In the meantime the invalid had been making feeble efforts to release his head from the suffocating towel. He had partly succeeded in this object, and his head, with his body in a last effort, he fell out of bed upon the floor with a heavy thud. The noise occasioned by his fall alarmed the thieves, who dropped their bag and sprang through the window and escaped. The disturbance also aroused Mrs. Sweeney from her sleep, and she rushed into the apartment to find the sick man stretched upon the floor, speechless and helpless, half covered in his bed clothing, and the scattered feathers and the plunder of the thieves.

One-Half to the Informant.

An "Old Doctor" contributes to the Charlottesville, Virginia, Chronicle the following amusing story:

"In colonial times, when Colonel Archibald Cary was a magistrate, living at Williamsburg, a man who was much disliked by his neighbors on account of his vindictiveness and general meanness came before the old Colonel and informed him that his neighbor, John Brown, had violated the Game law by killing a deer before the 1st of September. Now, although Brown was a good, honest, poor man, much esteemed by his acquaintances, Esquire Cary was bound to issue a warrant for his arrest, and when Brown appeared before him he confessed that he had killed the deer, knowing at the time that he was violating the law, but that his wife had a great longing for venison, and, knowing that the deer daily frequented his corn-field, she gave him no peace. He had begged her to wait a little while, till the 1st of September, but she vowed she would not wait. So he killed the deer. The old magistrate, seeing full of compassion, said:

"Brown, the law is explicit; you will have to pay the fine, which is $5."

"Lord bless your heart, Colonel Cary," said Brown, "all I have on earth would not sell for $5."

"Well, then," said the Justice, turning to the law and reading, without paying strict attention to punctuation or the exact position of the words, "Whoever shall be guilty of shooting, starting, trapping, or in any way killing a deer within this, his Majesty's Colony of Virginia, at any time between the 1st of May and the 1st of September, shall pay a fine of $5, and, if he is unable to do this, the punishment shall be awarded by 39 lashes on the bare back, well laid on, one half to be given to the informant, and the other half to the King."

"Mr. Constable," said his Honor, "as we are enjoined to do justice and love mercy, and where an odd amount which is not capable of an equal division is to be divided between a rich man and a poor man, I always give the poor man the larger share; you will, therefore, give the informant in this case the 20 lashes, and whenever you catch his Majesty's King in this colony, you will then give him the 19." So the majesty of law was maintained, much to the satisfaction of all who knew the odious informant."

A Warning to Girls Who Chew Gum.

From the St. Louis News.

Last Saturday evening an incident occurred on Portland avenue that may serve as a warning to hundreds of young persons who have entered upon a career of wax-chewing. A girl named Lida Smith had been a chewer for nearly a year. She is about 11 years old, rather bright and intelligent, and chewed about the same quality of the material that was used by neighboring girls along the avenue. On Saturday evening she took her wax from her mouth, stuck it under the edge of the mantle until she could go to the kitchen and get a swallow of water, and on her return her parents were horrified to see her jaws moving rapidly. She was told to throw the wax from her mouth, and on investigation it was found that her jaws kept moving at a rapid rate. The parents sent for a physician, who came and attempted to hold the jaw in proper position, believing it to be only temporary, but he could not stop the regular movement. The child grew nervous, and the excitement only increased the action of her jaws. The physician put a tight bandage over her face, and this partially relieved the movement, but then the twitches of the muscles extended all over the face. As a last resort a moderate dose of morphine was administered, and the little girl kept up incoherent mutterings, accompanied by a general disturbance of the muscles of the upper portion of the body during the early part of the night, and toward morning the little sufferer was restored to her normal condition. The physician says he never heard of such a case before, and thinks it was brought about by a spasmodic action of the muscles of the face, caused by overaction. The little girl, after enduring a night of suffering, is now restored, but nothing in the world could induce her to again chew wax.

What Surgeon Says.

A Hartford man wrote to Mr. Spurgeon to know if he could be the minister meant by Neal Dow who mixed his religion with so much rum and tobacco. Neal Dow did not say Spurgeon, but his description fitted him exactly. Spurgeon replied: "I use no alcoholic drink as a beverage, but I am an habitual abstainer, and, as a rule, a total abstainer. Beer, of which Mr. Dow speaks, I never touch, and I never thought much less said, that I could not keep up to my work without brandy and beer. I do not believe that these or any other stimulants are a help to any man." Mr. Spurgeon's secretary indorses the statement. Neal Dow has the floor. Did he mean Spurgeon or not? If he did, spoke he of his own knowledge, or from hearsay? If it is Neal Dow, who did he mean? Or was his striking picture only a figure of speech to help the cause?

THE SILVER MINES.

Reports of The Officers of the California and Sierra Nevada Mining Companies.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. Jan. 15.—The California Mining Company held its annual meeting to-day. The old officers and trustees were re-elected without opposition. The report of the Secretary shows a balance on hand in coin and bullion of $638,000. The Superintendent, in his report, after reviewing the operations of the year, and dwelling upon the increased cost of production in consequence of extensive repairs to machinery, and the greater depth from which ore is extracted, concludes that laterajdrifts, cross cuts, and winzes which have been run in different levels, secure good ventilation, and form the complete base from which we can now continue the extraction of ore from productive levels, and carry on the work of development of the new lower levels, leaving the two upper levels, in which ore has been exhausted, out of consideration. There still remains in sight another productive level, blocks of good ore, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the low grade of ore which exists there may improve on further exploration, and portions of these levels remain entirely unexplored, and are yet to be prospected. The three lower levels, particularly the 1,930 and 2,150 foot levels have only begun to be opened, and still there is here a large extent of ground to be prospected. So far as we have advanced into these levels the formation appears favorable, and already a seam of ore yielding fine assays has been reached in the main drift on the 1,950 foot level. This seam has been followed for more than 100 feet, and lies fully sixty feet east of the main ore vein. We are encouraged to hope for renewed prosperity to the mine, not only from indications visibly in itself, but also from the important fact that our developments have been made in the Comstock vein considerably deeper than our present workings, notably in the case of Sierra Nevada mine, where the top of the late ore development is 200 feet deeper than our lowest level.

The Sierra Nevada also had its annual meeting to-day. The report of the Superintendent is in effect a review of the operations previously made public from time to time by the press. The Superintendent believed the ore body is widening as it goes down, and takes a favorable view of the prospects of the mine.

Etiquette in Louisville.

From the Courier-Journal.

There is an exquisite beau in town whose credit was good at a certain store for a $75 toilet set, which he sent to his Dulcinea as a New Year's gift. This week the bill therefor was presented, whereupon he loudly exclaimed: "Sir, you do not think I would disgrace myself by paying you money, sir, by paying you for these things?" The merchant expected nothing else. "Well, sir, you are most unmistakably mistaken! Why, sir, look-a-here! That's good authority, ain't it?" and the youth drew forth a yellow backed treatise on Etiquette, and triumphantly pointed to this sentence: "It is vulgar to pay more than $50 for a Christmas or New Year's present." "Now, sir, do you suppose a man who belongs to one of the first families in Kentucky is going to be vulgar? Your bill is $75, sir!" The dealer says that if any young lady hereabouts received on the 1st a cream colored toilet set, with pictures of sky-blue shepherdess on it, she could learn the history thereof by reading the above.

Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well, no harsh treatment, no tramping, no flattery. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained from years of experience in the treatment of chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what the ailment, to call and investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves; it will cost nothing as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

DR. V. CLARENCE PRICE
